

ABSTRACT

The automatic transaction device includes a storage section for storing form format-data of a plurality of different forms, a display/input section for displaying the plurality of different forms, a selection unit with which a customer selects a desired form out of the displayed forms, a transaction control section for reading from the storage section form format-data corresponding to the form selected by the customer, and a form-printing control section and a print section for printing a form based on the form format-data.